Having a comfortable work/art space is very important to me and could help to produce amazing work.

You don't need to have the most glamorous and beautiful art space, whatever works for you is just fine.

I have two tables in my art space where I mostly work. This table actually has a mirror, so I can prop that up and do a self portrait.

My art space isn't very fancy, it's literally a foldable table and a party chair lol. But this setup has allowed me to create all the artwork that I love.

My art space also consists of having artwork on my wall right in front of me. I like to look up and get inspiration. It also allows me to feel motivated to look at all my finished pieces.

There's a color wheel on my wall which definitely helps when I'm painting or working with color.

My art space has all my resources and tools around me to help me create.

Depending on what I'm working on also depends on where my art space is going to be. I work with ceramics, so my art space will be outside. Inside my room dry clay falls on the carpet and makes a mess.

Some art spaces aren't always going to be permanent.

When I work outside it allows me to be as messy as I want without having to worry If i'll stain or ruin something. I also have a bigger work space outside and it's more accessible to water when working with ceramics. I hope you enjoyed my art space and how I utilize the environment around me.
